

CLIMATE RISK MANAGEMENT AS A FIELD

An aerial photograph of a suburban neighborhood completely inundated with floodwater. The water is a murky, brownish-grey color, reaching the roofs of many houses and surrounding the trees. The houses have various roof colors, including grey, brown, and red. The trees are mostly green, though some appear to be partially submerged. The overall scene depicts a significant natural disaster impact on a community.

James Doss-Gollin

CEVE 543

2026-08-24

NOT POSTED YET

This page is not posted yet.